

Olive Roots, an International Undergraduate Journal on the Israeli-Palestinian conflict, is calling for undergraduate papers for its Spring 2013 publication.

Olive Roots will consider papers and reviews written by undergraduate students on any subject pertaining to the Israeli-Palestinian conflict. Special consideration will be given to papers discussing the conflict in a "post-Arab Spring" context. Papers will be evaluated according to quality of research, depth of inquiry, creativity, original insight and clarity. They will be reviewed by peers and an advisory board of professors with relevant expertise. Prizes of US$ 75 each will be rewarded to each selected entry.

We will also accept original photography and artwork related to the conflict or region.
